TERRY'S TIDBITS

Each week we assemble and the faces of our fellow worshippers tell great stories. Some have received concerning news during the week and we see the need to encourage. Others the lines of concern are furrowed, and we know we need to pray. Still others give off the joy of good news. We still need to encourage, pray and help. Many others are somewhere in between. They need the same bearing of a burden, prayer for a need or encouragement. One of the things we often miss is the need for those who do not wear it on their face. Inside our hearts we carry the load. One of the joys of fellowship comes when we share a burden. When we tell our friends of the depth of love we have for one another. When we give a gentle hug and tell them we will help in any way. This is the fellowship of a church family.

How often we miss those small signals that reveal a friend needs a little help. Take the time this week to observe. See if you can find a place to be gentle and caring. See if you can help the person across the aisle that needs a smile or a gentle touch reminding them someone cares.

Bro. Terry
